Pyne, where the bus terminal is. A few want to retain the old First National Bank Building on the Nassau-Witherspoon corner, and the Sturhahn-Dickenson-Bernard building on Nassau at the head of University Place.

But the preservation of old buildings in Princeton is an even more delicate question than the appearance of new ones.

"People won't stand for an ordinance on preservation," Mrs. Field believes, "but if we could preserve maybe one or two, we might get a foot in the door."

"What are we trying to accomplish, is the big question," says Mayor Cawley. "Do we want a lot of traffic-generators on the street level, for example? This question of 'retail' — I want to keep it the way it is now, where anything goes. That way, we have a better chance of saving some kinds of uses, like hardware stores.

"And there is a distinction between 'negotiations' with a developer, and a requirement — which could be hard to enforce."

"What we're asking," Mrs. Field remarks, "is — 'what is there about Nassau Street that you like?' and trying to keep that."

—Katharine H. Bretnall

SAVE THIS ONE: Once a bank now an insurance agency, this building seems to be on everyone's list of Nassau Street buildings that must be preserved.

SHRUBBERY PRUNING TIPS

with Sam DeTuro

Woodwinds Associates

It is most advisable to prune your shrubs a little each year to avoid the need for massive surgery. Annual attention keeps shrubbery shapely and in good condition. Light heading-back: prune spring-flowering shrubs such as mock orange, forsythia and lilac immediately after blooming. Summer-flowering shrubs like rose of sharon and honeysuckle should be pruned in early spring. Thinning: This involves the removal of one or more of the old limbs at the base of the shrub. Rejuvenate an old shrub over a three year period by cutting out about a third of the oldest canes annually. Suckers: Shrubs such as lilac and flowering almond put out numerous sucker growths from the roots. To keep the plants in bounds, these must be cut off. Dig soil away from sucker and cut it off flush with root. Your pruning objective with Evergreens should be a natural soft appearance that strikes a happy medium between forest-primeval shagginess and fresh from the barber nakedness. Prune late in spring or early summer after the first burst of heavy growth and vie a light touch-up in late summer. Evergreens seal their wounds with resin, so no wound paint is necessary. Feed them each spring and keep a close watch on their soil and make sure to water especially if they are under eaves.

To keep your shrubbery happy and healthy consider deep root feeding and call WOODWINDS (924-3500) for all your garden's needs.

Sewer Hook-Up Ban May End This Week

The temporary ban on sewer connections in Princeton, initiated last month after the State Department of Environmental Protection was alerted to recurring problems along the Harry's Brook line, is likely to be lifted by the end of this week.

"They've done a substantive job and I think the problem is solvable now," Arnold Schiffman, administrator of water quality management at the DEP, said in a telephone interview late Tuesday afternoon. "They" are Princeton Borough officials, particularly Mayor Cawley and engineer George Olexa, who submitted detailed arguments supporting the Borough's claim that work already was progressing under the terms of the agreement the municipality already had worked out with the state.

"We received a lot of information we didn't have before," said Mr. Schiffman of the presentation the Borough made on June 30. "They submitted quite a package. If they hadn't submitted so much I might have gotten to a response sooner."

Mr. Schiffman said that his formal response to the Borough would be delivered by the end of this week. While he would not say flatly that the ban would be lifted until that response was transmitted, he did say that "it looks favorable. It does not look like a regulatory issue anymore."

The state official's comments probably should not encourage developers to jump up and down and start making sewer connections willy-nilly. "There's still a question of time frame," Mr. Schiffman cautioned. "Not everyone will be happy because it will take time. It took 50 to 100 years for these problems to arise and

Borough May Charge Collins $90,000 and Up for Air Rights

Say that you owned a prime piece of real estate in Palmer Square, a lot 48 feet by 50, and say that the Collins Development Corporation, which has already committed $17 million and then some to its development in the Square, announced that it desperately needed your little plot to enable it to expand the Nassau Inn. How much would you charge Collins?

That question is essentially the one facing Borough Council as it begins its negotiations with Collins for the acquisition of the air rights over Palmer Square East. These rights will enable Collins to build the bridge that will connect the existing Nassau Inn with the planned expansion on what is now the parking lot across the street from the Inn and the Post Office.

On Monday, at its work session, Council heard the report of its independent appraiser, Joseph Martin, who concluded that a fair market value for the land would be $63,000, and that the total indicated value, based on the fact that a downtown developer would pay more for land adjacent to their existing properties, would be $90,000.

Council then went into a closed session to discuss its negotiating strategy with Collins. After the meeting Mayor Robert Cawley said that the Borough "has a strategy and we will present our position to Collins this week. Whether it will take one meeting or more to resolve the issue will depend on Collins' response to our proposal."

The mayor said that the $63,000 figure represented a minimum for the Borough to charge, but that the actual price could be "much higher." How much would be a matter of negotiation.

Given the views expressed at the public portion of Monday night's meeting, the question of how much to charge Collins was no doubt the subject of much wrangling among the Council members, as it no doubt will be among the general public. But before that wrangling even began, the Council heard the first rumblings of other discontent. Gerald Boswell, a lawyer for the state public defender's office and a Princeton Borough resident, showed up with a working draft of a legal brief intended to prove that the Borough has no legal right to sell the air rights to Collins.

The problem, said Mr. Boswell later, is that the section of the local land and buildings law enabling municipalities to sell land specifically excludes property "otherwise dedicated." Since Palmer Square East has been dedicated for years as a street and since air rights are legally part of the property, it cannot be sold, contended Mr. Boswell.

New State Regulations to Raise Dog License Rates

New state regulations that affect the licensing of male as well as female dogs "of reproductive age" are expected to raise the hackles of dog owners in both Borough and Township.

Beginning August 2, municipalities are required to collect an additional $3 for "any dog of reproductive age which has not had its reproductive capacity permanently altered through sterilization." In addition, the state is requiring another 20 cents per license which will go to a "pilot clinic fund."

Township Committee introduced an ordinance Monday night to bring its code in conformity with the new state regulations, and the Borough was expected to do likewise when Council met Tuesday night.

License fees in the Borough and Township are currently $8 for each dog. The new rules for unspayed females or unaltered males will mean an annual license fee of $11.20.

In the Township a late fee of $2 is charged for each month or fraction of a month that elapses after the January 31 deadline. In the Borough the late fee is $1 per month or fraction of a month.

The purpose of the new regulations, which were signed into law in Trenton on May 4 and May 11, are to curb the growing population of stray dogs and cats. According to Dr. Richard Gilbert of the Community Health Services Department of the state Department of Health, the $3 collected from all the unaltered reproductive dogs in the state will go to a pool of funds with which to reimburse veterinarians for the full cost of performing spaying and neutering operations on dogs and cats. In order to encourage the neutering of dogs and cats, owners will pay a set fee, he says, which will not represent the total cost.

Similarly, the 20-cent fee collected on all dog licenses for neutered as well as unneutered animals will go to the establishment of a pilot clinic at which spaying and neutering operations will be performed at a minimal charge for those who cannot afford to have the operation performed.

Township Committee has set its meeting of Monday, July 25, at 8 p.m. in the Valley Road Building as the public hearing before final adoption of the ordinance. In the Borough the public hearing will be Tuesday, August 9, at 8 in Borough Hall.

In other business, Township Committee has lowered the speed limit on Cherry Valley Road from 50 mph to 40 mph. The lower speed limit was suggested by the Traffic Safety Committee. It has been approved by the state and agreed to by Montgomery Township, which has adopted a similar ordinance.

Committee also approved the appropriation of $20,000 from the capital improvement fund for office furniture and equipment for certain Township offices in the Valley Road building and adopted a salary ordinance that provides a seven percent across-the-board salary increase for municipal employees for 1983.

Two Year Period. Mayor Winthrop Pike noted that the recently completed salary negotiations with the police are for a two year period. Salary increments for other municipal employees are usually contingent upon the increments paid to the police.

Committeeman William Cherry called attention to what he called "the considerable reduction" in postal services in the Borough and Township. The post office station in the Shopping Center has not been reinstated through what he termed "incredible parsimony" on the part of the Post Office.

Postal boxes at Redding Circle and Lloyd Terrace housing complexes have been removed, as well as the box in front of Borough Hall, he said. Moreover, there is not a single box that has a collection time later than 5 p.m., he added.

Mayor Pike said he had been doing some "looking into" the matter, but he warned that Princeton Township's "track record" in this matter was not the best. He cited the several times that the Post Office has sought to build a new facility in the Township, specifically on Harrison Street, only to arouse disapproval from the residents.

they won't all be solved in two minutes. There will always be a level of constraint based on progress."

But, he continued, "Princeton is meeting its goals. It's committed to solving the problem and I think they're doing a good job."

Mayor Cawley, speaking at his weekly press conference before Mr. Schiffman's views became known, said that he was awaiting word and was optimistic. "We're looking for a reply that says you're back operating under the consent order" — that was the agreement that lifted the longstanding ban on connections during the 1970s. "We think we have a good story to tell." The mayor appears to be correct.

Borough Council Tackles Problem of Setting Rules and Regulations for Volunteer Firemen

Borough Council this week finally got around to the long smoldering matter of the volunteer firemen's rules and regulations, though—as the firemen might point out—burning embers remain and the fire cannot yet be considered out.

The new rules and regulations, introduced at the Council meeting Tuesday night, were part of "a big housekeeping effort," said Councilman and Fire Commissioner Richard Woodbridge, himself a volunteer fire fighter. The need for such an effort was recognized about a year ago, when the Board of Engineers, the governing body of the firemen, attempted to discipline one of its members and discovered that it had no written rules to cover the alleged infraction.

Also on this week's agenda was a discussion of the requirement that firemen live within six miles of Princeton if they are to serve in the department. This was one of those embers—the Board of Engineers was seeking a rider that would enable it to recommend to Council that the residency rule be waived in certain cases. Council would not be obliged to follow that recommendation. "It's more of a token gesture than anything else," said Mr. Woodbridge.

A gesture it may be for Council, but the residency requirement is a serious matter for the firemen, who have found their ranks diminishing in recent years as young firemen move out of town in search of affordable housing.

The struggle to attract new men and women to the volunteers' ranks bears on another difficult question facing Borough Council and the Board of Engineers: the length of term for the fire chief. The term now is one year and the frequent turnover at that position is cited as one incentive for new people signing on as firemen.

Facing Tough Questions. But, says Mr. Woodbridge, "the job has become heavier and heavier. The chief does all the fire inspections, plus goes to all the fires, and he has to keep up relations with the other communities and those communities now have to get a new chief in Princeton every year."

The fire commission has recommended that Council pass an ordinance extending the term to three years, but Council passed up the opportunity in the face of a petition from some firemen. Now, points out Mr. Woodbridge, the current chief, William Rodweller, and previous chiefs, including Ray Wadsworth and Ralph Hulit Jr., "have begun to realize the problems, and we've moved rather fast to cope with some difficult issues and face some tough questions."

TOPICS Of The Town

Among the looming issues is a proposed state law, "in the hopper," says Mr. Woodbridge, that would require municipalities to perform fire safety inspections on a regular basis. "We may have to adopt a fire inspection code if it's not mandated upon us," he said.

If such inspections were necessary, then the fire chief would be overloaded with work. The fire commission already has recommended to Council that a fulltime fire inspector be hired to handle those duties and otherwise ease the workload of the chief.

Move Chambers St.? For the past 10 years or so firemen have talked about the possibility of moving Chambers Street, by which they mean moving the fire house on that clogged little street, not the street itself.

"The situation on Chambers Street is not tolerable," says Mr. Woodbridge, referring to the difficulty firemen have in parking their cars near the station when responding to an alarm as well as to the traffic bottlenecks the engines face when they hit the street. "When Collins comes on line," he asks, "then where are you going to park?"

Mr. Woodbridge points out that Princeton's three fire companies have long traditions—two of them will celebrate bi-centennials within the next 10 years—and that many of the firefighters come from long lines of families who have served in one company or another. As such, the councilman adds, you can expect to find more than a few traditionalists.

But on the matter of moving the Chambers Street fire house even the members of that company, Mercer No. 3, have indicated to him in writing that they are willing to consider such a move. "They didn't want to commit themselves to moving, but everyone seemed to be in a mood to look at overall, fundamental changes," says Mr. Woodbridge.

INSURANCE BILL MOVES

In State Legislature. A bill that would abolish New Jersey's no fault automobile insurance system, repeal a recent rate hike, freeze current rates until the first of next year, and, in the opinion of its sponsor, ultimately reduce the average car insurance premiums in the state by as much as 40 percent, has been passed in the Assembly by a substantial margin.

The bill's sponsor, Assembly Speaker Alan J. Karcher, a Democrat from Middlesex, said that the Senate was likely to approve the measure as well. Another bill to reform the no-fault system, which some experts believe has caused New Jersey drivers to have the highest average insurance bills in the nation, is also pending in the Assembly and may be voted on within the next two weeks.

The chief counsel for Governor Kean said that the governor had not taken a position on either of the two bills and that some compromise might be

Princeton's Congressional District—And Congressman—May Soon Change

If you live in Princeton Borough or Princeton Township, the following question will test your political acumen:

Who is your Congressman?

If you answered Matthew Rinaldo, you are correct, for the time being, at least. If you said Chris Smith, you may be correct within the next few weeks, if the New Jersey legislature enacts—and if Governor Kean signs—a bill that would create 14 new Congressional districts aimed at meeting Supreme Court objections to the state's current alignment.

The present districting has Princeton in Mr. Rinaldo's "fish hook" district, which juts as far north as Elizabeth. The proposed redistricting would place Princeton in Mr. Smith's bailiwick, which includes Trenton and most of the rest of Mercer County.

If you didn't know who your Congressman was, is, or might be, don't feel bad. In recent years Princeton has been tossed from Frank Thompson to Millicent Fenwick to Mr. Rinaldo. The reason, of course, is as much political as it is shifting population. The current proposal was devised by Democrats who feel that Mr. Smith, a Republican, would fare less well in Princeton Borough than he would in Lawrence Township, which he would lose under the new alignment. But all this may change several times again before the politicians are through. Stay tuned.

necessary. But, Counsel W. Cary Edwards added, the governor will consider "anything else the Legislature wants to pass that would save New Jersey drivers money."

The Karcher bill was criticized by Assemblyman Anthony M. Villane Jr., Republican of Monmouth, who said it would encourage motorists to operate their cars with no insurance. "Half the people in the state," he said, "won't want anything to do with insurance and will take their chances."

Mr. Karcher responded that "when people had no gun to their head" to have insurance before the advent of no-fault insurance in 1971, 85 percent of all motorists elected to have it. "Now we have 600,000 people driving around with no insurance because they can't afford it."

If Mr. Karcher's bill becomes law, it will require motorists who do not buy liability insurance to pay $100 per year into an unsatisfied claim and judgment fund, designed to compensate victims of accidents involving uninsured and hit-and-run vehicles. It would also establish a board of arbitration to settle bodily injury suits of less than $15,000.

NEW ROLE ANNOUNCED

For Nuclear Protester. Ariela Gross, the Princeton High School senior whose views on the nuclear arms race are nationally known, continues to make news.

Miss Gross held a press conference in Washington, D.C., yesterday to announce her new role as national spokesperson for a new organization: Save Our Future: Students Allied for Voter Education. She was flanked by Massachusetts senators Edward Kennedy and Edward Markey, as well as Congressmen Bill Green and Jim Leach, and Randall Kehler, coordinator of the National Freeze Campaign.

Save Our Future: Students Allied for Voter Education seeks to register the 17 million 18-24 year olds who did not vote in 1980. This is one-fifth of the voting population of the United States, Miss Gross says, and could have a major impact on the 1984 election attempt to elect officials who support a bilateral Freeze on further nuclear weapons testing and deployment.

In August Miss Gross will tour five cities on behalf of the group. Her trip will be funded by the Council for a Liveable World Education Fund and will include stops and speeches in Atlanta, Chicago, Los Angeles, Miami, New York and San Francisco.

Miss Gross describes the new organization as an alliance of national high school groups who support the arms control efforts already underway on college campuses. She says that the idea of voter registration among the 18-24 year old group was suggested to her by Senator Markey when she was in Washington to receive her Presidential Scholar medallion. At about the same time the Council for a Liveable World asked her to make a tour, and the two ideas merged into one.

The press conference was timed, she says, to coincide with key votes in the Senate on funding for the MX missile which is the subject of intense lobbying pressure from the Administration and from arms control and Freeze advocates across the country. The tour will be launched on August 26, but in the meantime she hopes to have some vacation time in Maine.

HOME IS ENTERED

On Witherspoon Street. A home on Witherspoon Street was entered Thursday between 10:30 in the morning and 10:10 at night by way of an unlocked first-floor window.

The intruder searched the house and left with a portable television set, window fan, a radio cassette recorder valued at $53, two cartons of cigarettes and $21 cash.

Township police report a home on McCosh Circle burglarized Friday between 1:45 and 2:39 p.m.

Some jewelry, a small amount of cash and a silver cup were taken from the home which police described as "slightly ransacked." Entry was gained through a bath room window.

CYCLIST, CAR COLLIDE

At Wiggins and Madison. A 67-year-old bicyclist was injured Thursday afternoon when he collided with a car at the intersection of Wiggins and Madison Streets.

The cyclist, Gilbert A. Hunt, 80 Western Way, scraped and bruised his left elbow and sustained bruises of the leg and head but refused treatment.

According to the police investigation by Det. Willam Clark, a car operated by Lorraine M. Kerr, 76, 44 Locust Lane, made a left turn onto Madison directly in front of Mr. Hunt, causing his bicycle to strike the front of her car. The impact threw him from the bike onto the car's windshield, which was shattered.

Mrs. Kerr was issued a summons for failing to yield the right of way. She told Det. Clark that she didn't see the the cyclist. "I didn't see anyone. I was thinking of what I was going to buy at the market."

Charged with DWI. A 17-year-old Belle Mead driver was charged with driving while intoxicated and with careless driving, following a two-car accident early Sunday morning at the intersection of MARRIED 70 YEARS: Henry Biekart, who will be 96 next month, and his wife Augusta, who was 97 in June, celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary Sunday at the home of their eldest daughter, Mrs. Anne Huizing, Washington Street, Rocky Hill, with whom they live. The couple, both natives of Holland, were married in Chicago in 1913. For the past 28 years, Mr. Biekart has been a retired Rutgers University professor. Shown holding their dog Sammy, Henry and Augusta have two other daughters, Nell Beeton of Savannah, Ga. and Flora Campbell of Del-Ray Beach, Fla. There are eight grandchildren and five, great grandchildren.

morning in the Tulane East lot.

The car's windshield wipers were bent over and a side view mirror broken, police said. The car is owned by a Princeton resident.

POLICE HERE DISCOVER It Never Hurts To Ask. Police asked the questions, an accommodating suspect answered–and ended up being charged with possession of marijuana.

John W. Ray, 24, of Emerald Road, Kendall Park, was charged with possession of under 25 grams of marijuana, after his arrest early Saturday morning on Witherspoon Street. He faces a September 7 hearing in Borough court.

As Ptl. Anthony Federico and Sgt. Ronald Holliday were checking out a motor vehicle violation on Witherspoon around 12:30 in the morning, they were approached by two young women who said that they were being followed. They pointed out the suspect to Ptl. Federico who pursued him and ordered him to stop.

While checking the suspect's identification, Ptl. Federico observed some cigarette rolling papers in his wallet.

"What do you use this for?" Ptl. Federico asked.

Valley Road and Witherspoon Street.

She was identified as Dawn L. Luzzi, 301 Tall Cedar Court, Belle Mead, who refused to relate details of the accident to Ptl. Anthony Gaylord. She was taken to headquarters, given a Breathalyzer test, charged and released.

Police said that a car driven by Lisa A. Carini, 21, 13 Wynnewood Drive, Cranbury, was stopped for the stop sign at Valley Road when the Luzzi small foreign car, making a right turn, struck the left front of the Carini car and then ran off the roadway.

VANDALISM AFTERMATH Still Counting. Police officials in both the Borough and Township report that they are still in the process of trying to total up the damage caused by two juveniles in a vandalism spree two weeks ago.

Borough Chief Michael Carnevale reported this week that the number of cars damaged in the Borough has increased to 75 from an estimated 60. Detective Gerald Patterson, he said, is still in the process of continuing the investigation and has been unable as yet to arrive at a dollar estimate of the damage.

Over in the Township, Juvenile Officer Jerry Offredo reported that damage to the scoreboard at Clarke Field has been placed at $1,000 by Princeton University.

"It's going to be a long while before we get dollar and cents figures for everything," predicted Det. Offredo. "Maybe not even after it goes to court."

Meantime, Brough police reported one act of vandalism last week to a car parked between 12:30 and 2 Saturday

"For smoking grass," the suspect replied.

When Ptl. Federico then asked, "Do you have any grass in your possesson?" the suspect, police said, reached in his right front pocket and pulled out a packet of marijuana.

Charged With Forgery. As a result of an investigation by Det. Gerald Patterson, a Clay Street resident, Jerome P. Marshall, 23, has been charged with forgery and theft by deception.

Police report that Marshall, while working as a housekeeper in a Westcott Road home, forged numerous checks totalling $811.

In addition, in connection with several bomb threat calls made to the Princeton University Store this year, Marshall has also been charged with false public alarm. He is the second person police have arrested and charged with being involved with bomb threats made to the store.

Marshall is scheduled to appear in Borough court next Wednesday.

Joseph K. Wright, 23, 21 Olden Street, has been charged by police with criminal mischief.

According to police, while Ptl. Joseph Wilhelm and Ptl. Federico were attempting to resolve a domestic dispute on Olden Street a few minutes past midnight Friday morning, Wright allegedly kicked out the front storm door of an Olden Steet home.

THEFT REPORT

$3,000 Gold Chain Stolen. A 22 karat gold chain valued at $3,000 has been reported stolen from a Hibben Building apartment off Faculty Road.

The chain was taken from a jewelry box in a bureau between June 16 and Friday when the theft was discovered. Police report the apartment was vacant during that time and that there were no signs of forced entry. Nothing else was stolen.

An opal and diamond pendant necklace valued at $1,100 was stolen last week from a Red Hill Road residence while the owner was in the process of moving. According to police, the pendant had been placed in a dresser and left in the home. When the owner returned four days later to move the dresser, the necklace was missing.

The thefts reported last week by police were the result of shoplifters.

Two necklaces, described by police as a 14K onyx diamond and a 14K crystal diamond were stolen from a display case in a Witherspoon Street jewelry store. Police said that the necklaces, with a combined value of $475, were discovered missing some time after two customers had come into the shop and looked at the them with the aid of a sales clerk.

Shoplifted from the J.D. Sachs store, 45 State Road, last week, was a yellow rain parka valued at $129. Three black males left the store when they overheard a sales clerk, who felt they were acting suspiciously, call police Thursday at 7:27 p.m. A check of the store later revealed the parka was missing.

All three suspects were wearing designer jeans and all were well dressed, police said. One was described as 6-2, wearing a white dress shirt with a print, another as 5-9.

More Bicycles Stolen. As in virtually every week in the year, police reported several bicycle thefts.

A silver and white Peugeot bike, valued at $350, was taken between 1 and 5 Friday afternoon from the front porch of a Birch Avenue home. Police report that the thief had left in its place a Raleigh bike which had been stolen from the Borough earlier in the day.

In the Borough, a $300 moped and a $150 bicycle, both unlocked, were stolen between 12:30 and 8:30 Friday morning from an unlocked Nassau Street garage. A car in the garage was also entered and ransacked. Missing are a pair of prescription sunglasses valued at $125 and a regular pair worth $25.

About the same time, an adult three-wheel bicycle with a large rear basket was taken from an unlocked garage on Harris Road. It was reported stolen at 11:45 Friday morning.

An unlocked bicycle valued at $120 was stolen last week from an unlocked, screened-in porch of a Prospect Avenue home, and a bike worth $50 was taken during a 30-minute period while it was parked in the morning in front of the Public Library on Witherspoon Street. Police identified the owner as a Philadelphia resident.

A brown leather tote bag was stolen last week from the front porch of a John Street home. Police report that the owner, an East Windsor resident, had been visiting the home. He lost $410 in cash, clothing valued at $17.99—which was inside the bag—and the bag, which is valued at $60.

Early Thursday evening, a Random Road resident left his unlocked, parked car for a short period of time in the Princeton Shopping Center lot. When he returned to it, a wallet he had left on the front seat was missing. There was no money inside but the victim lost credit cards and personal papers.

SCAM ALERT In Township. Princeton Township citizens should be alert for a new "scam" which has just surfaced in the Township, according to Mayor Winthrop S. Pike.

It works as follows. The phone rings. The caller identifies herself as representing a plausibly official sounding agency concerned that Princeton's water supply is "sub-standard." Permission is requested to take a sample of water for testing from one of the homeowner's inside faucets.

If permission is granted, a representative duly appears, takes a sample and then tries to sell the homeowner a water softener with a name like "Rainsoft."

Princeton's water supply is not "sub-standard" and is not currently the object of special tests by any official agency, according to Mayor Pike. Residents should be wary of fraudulent attempts to gain entry to their homes, he said. All door-to-door salespersons in Princeton Township are required to carry permits issued by the Police Department.

If in doubt about anyone appearing at your door, call the Township Police at 921-2100.

Sing! Dance! Play!

If you have a little act you have been meaning to put together and take out on the road, the folks at Collins Development Corporation may have just the place for you to begin.

Noting that "the green in front of the Nassau Inn and the plaza at One Palmer Square are ideal spaces in which to share your talent with the public," Petie Duncan, special activities coordinator of Collins, is inviting performers of any sort to contact her about the possibility of turning those outdoor spaces into impromptu theaters.

Mrs. Duncan, who has been active for many years in community theater, says she is open to all suggestions: mime, music, dancing groups, or maybe even some chess whiz who wants to set up a simultaneous match. She also notes that more established groups already have concerts scheduled and places to perform. Palmer Square, she thinks, might be the place for younger performers to break into the public spotlight.

For information call Mrs. Duncan at Collins, 921-2333. And when you have made it big, just remember us back in the hometown.

SQUIBB MAKES GRANT

To Molecular Biology. Princeton University has received a $1.25 million commitment from the Squibb Corporation for endowment of a professorship in molecular biology.

The gift — the largest ever made by the Lawrenceville-based pharmaceutical company — will enable Princeton to establish the first of at least four endowed professorships in support of its new initiative in molecular biology.

"Since its founding in 1938, the Squibb Institute for Medical Research has been committed to basic research in the life sciences and, in recent years, has placed increased emphasis on investigations into the understanding of disease in molecular terms," said Richard M. Furland, chairman and chief executive officer of Squibb and a 1944 alumnus of Princeton.

"We thus applaud the University's commitment to building a world class department of molecular biology and are delighted to assist in a project which, we believe, will be of great benefit not only to our institutional neighbor but to medical science generally."

Squibb's commitment is the largest corporate contribution to date to Princeton's efforts to develop a program in molecular biology. The University launched its initiative in this area in January and is seeking $5 million for the endowment of our professorships and $29 million for a molecular biology building.

"Squibb Corporation's generous and timely gift is extremely important in its own right. In addition, it will have a significant impact on our efforts to attract further support for this critically important field," said Prince-

PHS IMPROVES

In Basic Skills. If this were almost any other test, the results for Princeton High School would have to be greeted with hurrays and huzzahs: 96.7 percent of those ninth graders tested passed the reading portion and 95.9 passed the math section.

But this was a minimum skills test, designed for the entire state, and Princeton was outscored in Mercer County by Hopewell Valley, West Windsor-Plainsboro, and even Lawrence. What gives?

"We would only be happy if we had 100 percent," conceded Superintendent Paul Houston, when asked about the results.

"But we're up quite a bit from last year and, when you consider the heterogenous nature of our student body, we did pretty well."

The improvement, the superintendent noted, came after the implementation of several new programs designed to give more support to students at the lower end of the academic scale. "Most of our students do well above the minimum," he said, adding that the school's average SAT scores are about 100 points higher than the state and national averages, even though about 90 percent of the students take them.

The results on the minimum skills tests, though, reflect another reality for the Princeton schools, Mr. Houston said. "We have an extremely diverse student population, including some among the finest in the United States and others with severe difficulties. We have all different income levels and we have a lot of students classified as handicapped or disturbed or needing remedial work. There are over 40 different languages spoken by our students."

'Real World.' Superintendent Houston said that ninth grade math and English programs in the past year have been modified to give special attention to those with problems. "We now have small classes, which allow more individual attention, plus we give them a double dose, a class in reading as well as in English."

Mr. Houston said that the problems caused by the diversity were more than offset by the advantages. "We do achieve excellence out of diversity," he said. "The kids have an opportunity to achieve, plus they have the opportunity to live in the real world."

The superintendent noted that neither Hopewell Valley nor West Windsor nor Lawrence could begin to match Princeton's diversity. Who could? "The only school in the country that I am familiar with is Palo Alto," he replied, "but it is much larger."

AGREEMENT REACHED

By Rail Contract. NJ Transit has reached agreement with officials of the Conrail East Committee of the United Transportation Union (UTU) on a three-year contract covering approximately 200 conductors and trainmen who work on the statewide public transportation corporation's rail lines.

NJ Transit had previously reached accord with the 425 member Conrail North Committee of the UTU which ended a 34-day work stoppage on April 2. Subsequent to this settlement, Conrail East had threatened another strike against NJ Transit and was restrained from taking action through a federal court order.

The agreement marks the conclusion of negotiations which began last fall as a prelude to the state's assumption of direct operation of commuter rail service in New Jersey which resulted from passage of the Northeast Rail Services Act of 1981.

The agreement reached with Conrail East is essentially the same one approved by Conrail North. No additional economic benefits are included in the agreement approved by Conrail East. The agreement does provide for implementation at a later date of a portion of the special ticket collector positions.

To date, NJ Transit has reached tentative and final agreements with 15 rail unions leaving only two more to be negotiated, the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers and the Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen. Efforts are also continuing to reach a ratified agreement with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Cenerino's Leigh Avenue Lounge & Restaurant To Celebrate its Golden Anniversary Next Week

Prohibition had just ended. Manfredo Cenerino Senior, already busy with his business of providing groceries and freshly-baked breads from his van — and running a garbage-collection business as well — decided to build his own building and open a bar.

In July, 1933, his building completed and standing free on its Leigh Avenue lot, Manfredo Cenerino served up his first glass of foaming draught beer, five cents a glass..

The bar is still there, still in the same building. And next Thursday, July 21, Cenerino's — now a restaurant as well — will celebrate its golden anniversary. For every table in the dining-room, there will be a half-carafe of wine on the house — a birthday present from the Cenerinos to the diners. There will also be a party in the bar-lounge.

Sadly, Manfredo will not be there for the golden anniversary. He died in 1936, when his new business was only three years old.

Heroine of Story. The heroine of this story of sturdy and successful enterprise is Manfred's wife, Archangela, widowed at 36, only 13 years removed from her native Italy, with four young sons to raise alone.

From the first, she had worked with Manfredo, doing all the cooking herself, in the days when a nickel beer entitled you to a free lunch, and what a lunch!

On a wood-burning stove, retired now to Cenerino's basement, Archangela made spaghetti — they didn't call it "pasta" then, in the United States — with her own sauce ... wild game in season, pheasant, blackbirds, rabbit. She prepared the free sandwiches of fresh Italian bread with salami, cappicola, cheese ...

Wednesday was spaghetti night; other nights, the specialty might be game, often blackbirds, rabbit and pheasant caught right there, in the fields around Leigh Avenue. And free. Always the food was free.

With your five-cent beer, you often had a shot. "A shot and draught beer" is the prompt recollection of Felix (Phil) Cenerino. Whiskey blends like Ten High and Old Drum, he remembers, and wonders, "Where have they gone?"

The clientele was Italian — families who lived in the neighborhood — and Irish, from other parts of Princeton.

CENERINO MATRIARCH: Archangela Cenerino, now 83, has been the guiding hand and spirit at Cenerino's. The Leigh Avenue bar and restaurant is celebrating its golden anniversary this month.

Both men and women dropped into the bar, sharing its coziness and conviviality, and on winter nights the cheer from the little fireplace in the rear. The fireplace is in the addition, because almost immediately Cenerino's needed more room.

On raw winter nights, that fireplace still draws customers to the back room — what is now the bar. The original bar in the front room, is now the 40-seat restaurant.

Open Land. The neighborhood was open, then. Where the community tennis court parking lot now is, there were grape vines for home-made wine, and courts where the men played bocce.

In the mid-1930s, when Palmer Square was built, black families who had lived where the Square was to be, were relocated a block north of Cenerino's, on Birch Avenue. Gradually, the Leigh-Birch neighborhood became a black neighborhood, although there are still Italian names on Leigh today — Pinelli and De Meglio, Carazzai and Cifelli, as well as the Cenerinos, who live in an apartment over the restaurant-bar.

Today, Felix Cenerino notes, young white families are buying into the neighborhood and its character is changing once again.

Archangela sold her interest in the bar to her four sons: Angelo, Felix, Manfredo Junior and Bernard. All the boys except Bernard worked in the bar as young men; today, it is managed by Felix. It was Felix's wife, Violet, who had the idea for the restaurant. She opened it last October.

Felix remembers working in the bar when he was only a boy. Under state law, all he was allowed to do was wash the glasses, and his mother had to obtain a special permit even for that, because he was under age.

Visits from Archangela. Lively of mind at 83, Archangela now lives in Morris Hall, on the Lawrenceville Road, visiting the bar and restaurant frequently and joyfully, and always asking, whenever the family visits her at Morris Hall, "How is the bar?"

"She loves our chef's specialty — the shrimp stuffed with crab," Violet says. "The chef uses only crab, you know: no bread-crumbs, and she loves that. He makes it specially for her, whenever she comes."

Violet is as proud of her restaurant as Archangela still is of her bar. With pride, she talks quietly about fresh foods, "never anything frozen" ... of the sauce she herself makes from Archangela's recipe ... the home-made chicken-noodle soup with its meat-filled tortellini ... the cheese ravioli made especially for her ... this summer's seasonal specialties, like soft-shell crab, "fresh and alive when they come to me"

She refers with a smile to the days of the free lunch, but she is proud of her own combination of quality and price, with $5.95 to $12.95 dinners that include soup, salad bar and pencil-points with her own sauce, along with the entree; daily specials at $6.95, lunch specials at $3.25.

A place whose clientele goes beyond the immediate neighborhood, and yet a place for the neighborhood, Cenerino's is a quiet, steady institution uniquely "Princeton."

Library a Top Priority.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

In light of recent discussions concerning municipal funding of the Princeton Public Library (Town Topics, "Compact Discussed," June 22, 1983), we want to lend our support to those individuals and groups who work diligently to increase public funding for this excellent institution.

Janice Stonaker, Chairman of the Board of Trustees; Robert H. Staples, Director; and John F. Bales, President of the Friends of the Library, have all done a commendable job in increasing public awareness of library services and preventing any further deterioration of public funding. We agree with Mr. Bales when he says, "I just don't believe it's the role of the Friends to pay salaries." The role of the Friends has traditionally been to initiate new and innovative programs and not to provide for basic services.

Basic services, such as book, magazine and record acquisitions, should be provided through municipal funding. Unfortunately some of the Friends' contributions have had to be used to supplement public monies available for these acquisitions. Last year the Library was only able to add 8,975 new books to its total collection of 114,153.

The total book stock has actually dropped by 2,143 volumes since 1979 in spite of the fact that the Library has one of the highest circulation per capita rates (13.26) for municipalities of comparable size (Ridgewood, 11.89; Chatham, 7.32; Livingston, 9.38). The cost per circulation is $1.78 which is one of the lowest for comparable municipalities in the State (Ridgewood, $2.02; Madison, $2.09; and Livingston, $2.11).

The Princeton Public Library is not only cost-effective but as Mr. Staples put it "Access to the Library ... is a very fundamental precondition for Princeton, for democracy if you will." It is a direct service, of consistently high quality, available to all residents of Princeton at no charge. Preeminently, it is a family service available to mothers, fathers, grandparents, and children. In fact, many people see the Library as the most accessible community center to residents of the borough and township.

In addition to its basic services, the Library abounds in special features: large print books; an Adult Basic Reading program (1000 hours of tutoring provided to functionally illiterate adults in 1982); microfilms which include the "New York Times" to its first issue in 1851 and the now extinct Princeton Herald, published from 1923-66; foreign language records; an ESOL collection; 16mm films and video-cassettes which circulate with 12 other libraries; indexes of major events published in "Town Topics" and the "Princeton Packet;" videodiscs to play on home TV; major city and county maps in New Jersey plus geodetic survey maps; and a community resource file of all organizations in the two municipalities.

NJNB's new Ready Equity gives you the kind of credit line you've always wanted but couldn't get. And this major source of money, always and instantly available, is yours to use simply by writing checks. It's ideal for major purchases, education expenses, debt consolidation, home improvements—just about anything you want, anytime you want it. Here's how Ready Equity works.

As a qualified customer, you receive a preapproved line of credit up to 75% of the equity in your New Jersey home—anywhere from $5,000 to $100,000 or even more. Then, when you need money, just write yourself a loan! No monthly service charges or annual fees. And you can write checks for any amount, starting with a minimum of $1,000 on up to your preapproved limit.

Convenient repayment plan

Each month you'll receive a statement listing all your loan activity. You can repay as little as $25, plus interest,* or your entire loan can be repaid at anytime with no prepayment penalties. Every payment you make replenishes your line of credit, so it's yours to borrow again if the need arises.

LET'S TALK ABOUT

LET'S TALK ABOUT – GREAT COVER-UPS

with Sam DeTuro

Woodwinds Associates

There are many garden jobs that only a vine can handle. Covering an arbor, softening a large bare wall, disguising an ugly fence are only a few problems that vines can help alleviate. With vines, you get more than a means for hiding and disguising, you can also get bowers of lovely flowers and on others just lush foliage. You can find a vine for almost any purpose. If a plant is to hang from a wire or rest on a shelf you might choose a trailing vine, such as lantana or English ivy. For a vertical garden, consider twining vines or woody, tendriled vines. The clematis, climbing honeysuckle and ever popular roses are attractive additions to any terrace decor, but do make sure you don't mind a few visiting bees. The woody vines like grape and Virginia creeper are ideal for the big jobs of climbing high walls or covering a large trellis. Don't forget to fertilize and care for your perennial vines as you would your shrubbery and trees. Call WOODWINDS (924-3500) with any questions you might have concerning your garden.

Add to this typewriters available at no charge to everyone from school children typing their first book report to those relocating in the job market with resumes and letters to type; a business corner for those seeking specialized knowledge about business trends, investments (particularly meaningful to retirees on fixed incomes whose every investment dollar really counts), market research, etc.; and library assistance provided either in person or over the phone for those who need to know the GNP of Chile or the latest IRS changes in personal income tax.

The Library staff are friendly, knowledgeable and create the feeling that all persons are welcome and that their individual pursuits have worth and dignity. There are nine professional librarians, all of whom have a Master's Degree in library service (science), and several support staff. All of them are essential to keeping the Princeton Public Library one of the finest in New Jersey.

We have a right to be proud of this institution in a town which prides itself on preserving a high quality of life for all its residents.

Let's make sure that the Library remains a top-priority item for all Princeton residents and receives every consideration in funding decisions. It is, after all, in a very real sense, the cornerstone of our collective future.

Geography Quiz.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Whoops! In your June 29 story on Route One, someone on your staff failed "Local Geography." (The story referred to "Princeton's three intersections with Route One: Harrison, Washington and Alexander").

Route 1 and Washington and Route 1 and Alexander are both located in WEST WINDSOR Township.

Only the mailing addresses are "Princeton."

RUTH FINKELSTEIN
10 Springwood Drive
Princeton Junction

Editor's Note: Town Topics' staff members usually get an "A" in local geography: They know the two intersections are in West Windsor, but they also know that these two intersections — plus the Harrison Street one — are Princeton's main access roads to Route One, hence the use of the phrase "Princeton's intersections."

Town Needs Library.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

I was distressed to hear about the next round of hours reductions for the Princeton Public Library.

I am a resident of Princeton and I work for the Federal government in this area. The summer hours reduction was a serious mistake for the example that this town is exhibiting to the surrounding towns. I understand that the Saturday hours during the summer were another gift. I say this to the library board, the library friends, and local governing officials that I have not heard a good reason yet for the reductions in hours.

The municipality's published reasons seem to miss the mark of what library service is in Princeton and what library service is in general. The town is calling for a greater management in the affairs of the library in regards to personnel and other matters. I do not see how a public institution can be responsive to the community if our elected officials seem to act differently to the needs of their constituents.

The weekly reduction of summer hours on a weeknight (Thursday) is an even more serious error. I speak for myself that I have since June 1, 1983, been traveling to Lawrence Public Library, a branch library of the Mercer County Library system. I will do the same on Saturdays for the duration of the summer, I believe.

I may also for research purposes have to travel to other libraries in Mercer and Middlesex counties (Rider College, Lawrence; Rutgers University, New Brunswick) but I consider that necessary for my continuing enrichment. However, I realize that the Princeton Public Library serves a need for myself and others in this region.

I urge the library board, the library friends, the director, and other responsible persons to seek a remedy to this erosion of library services in Princeton — not just for the summer but for the whole year — as we have seen other reductions. Library patrons of all ages from school-age to the age of senior citizens demand that we cannot be taken for granted to let these policies continue unabated. Whatever may seem prudent is encouraged.

Personally, I would like to see more government support from local, county, and state levels. The library may be able to participate in county, or regional, or state programs with other libraries in Mercer County or the surrounding region.

PHIL FRAULINO

Postscript. The original letter was sent to the director of the Princeton Public Library. He has urged me to share this letter with the local publications of Princeton.

Another Elm is Gone.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Have you noticed your Thomas Sweet ice cream melting quicker these days? Look up from your ice cream cone and you will notice why.

That lovely shade elm tree is gone. Princeton University took it down last week because it was dying of dutch elm disease. What a sad ending for so majestic a tree. It makes us all appreciate the lovely trees that our "town and gown" plant and maintain.

As the hot days of summer keep us looking for shade let's all say a thanks to the hard work of the University, and the Borough and Township Shade Tree Commissions for their diligence in keeping us cool!

Air Rights

"They're giving away something dedicated to the public," said Mr. Boswell. "If they do it here they can do it over parks, cemeteries, other streets. It sets a precedent for misuse and misallocation of public space. The public loses its right to that air space forever."

Borough attorney Edwin Schmierer had a different view. "We wouldn't let our client (the Borough) get this far if we thought that the law didn't permit this. And Collins' attorneys wouldn't let them go this far." Mr. Schmierer pointed out that the Borough isn't changing the dedication of the street and it technically is not selling the land but rather granting an easement.

"A section in the law allows you to deal with air rights as real property for which an easement can be granted, provided there is no adverse affect. Granted, what we're doing is probably tantamount to conveying title, but we're still retaining the title to the land."

While that legal skirmish was being waged, members of Council were sitting behind closed doors, presumably hashing out an asking price for the air rights. Mr. Martin's figure of $63,000 drew some raised eyebrows in the open session. Mr. Martin said that he had reached his figure in part by examining other real estate transactions in Princeton, including the purchase of the Laidlaw building site at 138 Nassau Street for $250,000, or $56.96 a square foot; the purchase of the land for the Gershen building at 182 Nassau Street for $350,000, or $26.42 a square foot; and the purchase by the Annex Restaurant of the old Turney Motors building at 255 Nassau Street for $630,000, or $17.30 a square foot.

The appraiser pointed out that the Hyatt Regency paid $98,000 for its land on Route 1, a price of about $2.50 a square foot. "That's a steal for a hotel," he said.

A Steal? "We'd like to make sure that it's not a steal in Princeton Borough," said Councilman Robert McChesney. Peter Bearse challenged Mr. Martin's appraisal of the value of the bridge compared to the entire hotel. "It's not rooted in what we've heard from Collins at the Planning Board," Mr. Bearse said, referring to the developer's insistence that the bridge was critical to the overall success of its project.

Mr. Bearse noted, however, that apart from Collins no market really existed for the air rights. "What's the value of an umbilical cord?" he asked.

The question now is as much for Collins as for the Borough, a fact not lost on some Council members. "Unless they're idiots," said Mr. Bearse, "Collins stands to make a bundle on this development."

YONDER LIES COLFAX AT BEDENS BROOK: Robert Tuschak, builder and developer, shows John Henderson, realtor, where the 23 building sites will be located on a new development site in Montgomery Township near Bedens Brook Club. Henderson Realtors has been named agent for the project.

REALTOR IS NAMED

For Colfax Building Sites. Robert Tuschak, builder-developer, has appointed John T. Henderson, realtor, as exclusive agent for "Colfax at Bedens Brook." Colfax is a cluster of 23 building lots across the Princeton line in Montgomery Township near the Bedens Brook Club.

Colfax sites range from a little over an acre to more than two acres of gently rolling ground with views of the nearby Sourland Mountains and Bedens Brook itself. A homeowners' association will maintain a green-acre belt of approximately 21 acres for beauty and privacy.

Care has been taken by the developer and Theodore Brickman Co. to save as much of the natural beauty and foliage of the land as possible. More than 300 trees have been transplanted to holding beds from which they will be replanted in a professionally designed fashion throughout the sites and green acres comprising Colfax.

The building areas themselves have been created on a circular cul-de-sac called Colfax Road. Each lot has been carved out to make the most of the internal shape and feel of the land as well as to enhance the views and positioning of each residence.

The esthetic design standards are being prepared by the architect Robert A. M. Stern who has also designed the first residence planned at Colfax. Architects Turner, Brooks, William Thompson and Kelbaugh and Lee are currently designing houses for the Colfax community as well.

Lots will be available for construction in September. The on-site improvements, including sewer, water and gas, are being made now.

Site plans can be seen now at Henderson offices in Princeton, Belle Mead and Pennington. Lots are available at prices of $100,000 and up. For more information or jeep rides to the sites call 921-9300.

FOUR ENTER BANKING

Via New Program. Four Princeton area residents are pursuing new careers in the financial services as new members of the customer service team at New Jersey National Bank.

Amy Fleming and Bernadine Hines of Princeton, Mary Ellen Keith of Skillman and Mary Pat DeJarnette of Plainsboro, along with 11 other Customer Service trainees, today work double-duty as troubleshooters and salespeople, assisting customers both in the bank's branches and answering a toll-free 800 telephone number. The group handles up to 600 customer inquiries a day about the bank's financial products and services, and customers' questions about specific accounts.

To qualify for the customer service representative positions, the group had to complete a six-month training program which covered all aspects of the bank's operations, divisions, products and services. Graduation ceremonies were held recently at Cedar Gardens in Hamilton Square Township.

The founder of the program, NJNB Senior Vice President Helen Borne, said that as the new group of graduates takes over the phone responsibilities, the former group of Customer Service representatives moves on to other positions in the bank.

A new group of customer service representatives enters the training course later this month.

TO SELL SUBSIDIARY

To Present Management. Gulton Industries, Inc. has signed a letter of intent to sell Southern States, Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary. The announcement was made by Walter F. Gips, Jr., Gulton chairman and chief executive officer.

Southern States, Inc. will be purchased by members of the subsidiary's present management, including Thomas W. McGarity, president, in conjunction with Holding Capital Group of New York City. Terms of the intended sale were not disclosed. However, the transactions will be for cash and other consideration equivalent to the book value of Southern States. The purchase is subject to the execution of a definitive agreement by both parties and to the completion of financing by the Holding Capital Group.

Mr. Gips said that the sale of Southern States is consistent with Gulton's strategy to transfer assets from the corporation's older, more mature businesses into the newer and more dynamic

DOGWOOD HILL

Custom Homes By William Bucci Builders, Inc.

Dogwood Hill is a unique residential enclave on the west side of Mount Lucas Road in Princeton Township.

The site is naturally rolling and covered with native dogwoods and large shade trees.

Eleven custom homes will be built on lots of at least three quarters of an acre, in a cluster plan with seven acres of common open space.

William Bucci Builders, Inc., are local builders with a fine record of building quality custom homes in the Princeton area. They will build from their plans or yours. All lots are fully developed with public water, sewer and underground utilities of electric and gas.

Mercer County Engineer Sees Replacement Of Harrison Street Bridge as Top County Priority

DO YOU TRUST THIS BRIDGE? Since the collapse of the Route 95 bridge in Connecticut you may not want to cross any bridges when you come to them. In the case of the Harrison Street bridge shown here, the drive across the 18-foot roadway has always been an adventure, but in the minds of Mercer County's bridge experts it is still considered structurally safe. The county hopes to replace the span within four years with a new bridge 30 feet in width, with room for a pedestrian walkway—not to mention a little breathing space for human error.

"When we inspect a bridge and find a serious deficiency, we close it."

Donald T. Harney, Mercer County Engineer, is firm and emphatic.

So far, the only one he has closed in Princeton is the frail and elderly span across Stony Brook at Province Line. That was last year. The bridge is still closed.

Since the recent I-95 bridge failure in Connecticut, the driving public has been uneasy about bridges. How about Princeton's?

The top Mercer County bridge priority in Mr. Harney's own mind is the bridge over Harrison Street.

"Not because of structural problems — and I want to emphasize that — but because of its high volume of traffic and its narrowness."

If everything moves smoothly along the routes already laid out for such things, Mr. Harney hopes Princeton and Mercer County will have a new Harrison Street bridge within the next four years.

Not Four Lanes. Not a four-lane bridge, he says, but definitely a wider bridge. The present one is 18 feet wide — barely enough for two cars to pass. The new one will be 30 feet wide. The present bridge has no place for pedestrians. The new one would have a pedestrian-safety walk.

The current one-and-one-half-ton load limit on Harrison was imposed about two years ago and at the same time the county installed "clearance" bars, warning of a seven-foot clearance. Both load limit and bars are designed to keep out the big trucks.

Mr. Harney knows that big cars like a Mercedes, Cadillac, Lincoln or a Buick station wagon probably weigh more than that 3,000-pound limit but so long as the heavy trucks are kept off the bridge, he is reasonably happy.

Harrison is a plate arch bridge, he explains, with a series of arches made of steel. With this kind of construction, rust and salts eat away at the metal and deterioration sets in so that some of the load-bearing members are not quite so strong. (The salts are those spread on the bridge deck during icy winter weather, Mr. Harney says.)

Collapse Not Imminent. "Harrison is narrow and aging rapidly, but it is not ready to collapse by any stretch of the imagination," Mr. Harney emphasizes. "In the past, the bridge has been closed because a driver went through the railing, and because of sewer work in West Windsor. It has never been closed because of structural problems."

Two years ago, Mr. Harney and the county applied to the New Jersey Department of Transportation for Federal and state money to replace Harrison. But the DOT had only $10 million for the whole state, and $40 million in applications.

About $355,000 has been set aside in this year's county capital budget for bridge repair.

Gasoline Tax Revenues. Two weeks ago, on July 1, the new five-cent gasoline tax went into effect, and Mr. Harney looks upon it with hope. New Jersey's allocation is supposed to be $50 million a year, but it may be a while before that two-week-old tax produces any dollars.

"The DOT is now saying they may be able to make a start on Harrison by the end of this year — sending out proposals for engineering designs," Mr. Harney says. "Design, then bidding, then construction.

"It's a big project and design could take a full year. You have to make detailed plans, then the state and Federal people must review the plans and their comments must come back. And it will take at least a year to build.

"If the municipalities continue to cooperate, and enforce the weight limit to keep the obviously over-size vehicles off, the bridge will last three or more years."

Other Princeton Bridges. In New Jersey, bridges are under the care of the counties, unless they are on state highways. Besides Harrison, there are other bridges within the borders of Princeton. On Alexander Street, there are two — the one over Stony Brook wholly within the Township and one over the canal — half in the Township and half in West Windsor.

Based on a report from the inspector, the county has done work on the one spanning Stony Brook.

"We try to keep up and do more frequent inspections and maintenance," Mr. Harney says.

The stone structure on Washington Road over Lake Carnegie is sturdy. So is the one over Stony Brook on Rosedale Road. The old stone bridge on Princeton Pike — also over Stony Brook — was closed 18 months for extensive repairs in 1978-79.

The Route 27 bridge at Kingston, relatively new, and the Stony Brook bridge on Route 206 (Lawrenceville Road) are both under the care of the state and are both regarded as problem-free.

Closed Forever. In January, 1982, when the county closed the Province Line Road bridge "forever" — the county's word — neighbors were indignant and retained their own engineer, who said he thought the bridge could be saved for 20 years and $100,000.

Eleven Fascinating Monologues by Women Is Latest Production by NewStage at Intime

THE GANG'S ALL HERE: Actors and directors mix it all up in the course of the 11 monologues that constitute Jane Martin's "Talking With," new at NewStage. Murray Theatre on the University campus is the stage. Each monologue is performed by a different actress and directed by a different director. (Dee Spirer Photo)

For its second production of the summer, NewStage at Intime has come up with something rather fascinating. It is called "Talking With," and it was written by someone who hides her identity behind the modest pseudonym of Jane Martin.

It consists of eleven monologues, all by women. In support of each actress stands a separate director, of whom eight are women and three are men. The titles of the monologues, though faintly uninformative, may whet one's curiosity. In Act One they are "Fifteen Minutes," "Scraps," "Audition," "Twirler," "Rodeo," and "Clear Glass Marbles." In Act Two they are "Lamps," "Dragons," "Handler," "French Fries," and "Marks."

More informative is the program note by Veronica Brady, artistic director of NewStage. It is worth quoting:

News Of The THEATRES

The nature of this script ... inspired me to put together eleven actress-director teams who could take great care and time creating these wonderful women. I felt the passions and emotions of their lives would best be discovered on a one to one basis. The teams were exceptional in their conscientious dedication to each piece and in their openness to the unusual amount of creative input. Speaking for them and for the many technicians upon whom so much of the work now hinges, we present this evening as an affirmation of our commitment to the joy of performing. Salud!"

I went to the opening performance of "Talking With" with moderate misgivings. Might not eleven monologues prove monotonous? Wouldn't comparisons be inevitable, condemning some of the poorer pieces to be left in the shade by the better ones? Was the whole thing a display case for some subtle, or unsubtle, feminist propoganda? Why was no director's name featured in the advance publicity: would the acting be hit-or-miss, undisciplined, self-indulgent?

The answer, happily: None of the above.

Wide Variety. There is so much variety here that it is hard to pinpoint the playwright's main ideas. She seems to enjoy flirting with the abnormal in "Lamps," "Dragons," "French Fries," "Marks." In several numbers she shows respect for old-fashioned virtues over modern corruptions of them. The cowgirl in "Rodeo" (Patricia Reiners, directed by Brendan Moran), recalls when rodeos were really tests of skill, entered into for the love of exercising those skills, in contrast with the gimmicks to lure the fast buck that they have become. In "Clear Glass Marbles" (Sally A. Boyko, directed by Penelope Reed) the girl describes her dying mother's determination to "wrap it up" by herself, without squads of impersonal physicians telling her what to do.

One of the most eye-catching numbers, "Lamps" (Billie Durand, directed by Linda Kinsey), shows us a woman in a room crammed with lamps of all shapes and sizes. Each represents certain memories. As she creates light designs by turning lamps on, off, bright or dim, we may judge her eccentric but certainly not mad, which was the judgment of her practical sister as she left to head back to the real world of tournament card-playing.

Sometimes earth-bound activities become imbued with spiritual qualities. In "Twirler" (Lynn Dorsey, directed by Dale Coye) the girl finds a religious ecstasy in twirling the baton. In "Handler" (Shannon Daley, directed by Kellie Easterling), a Southern girl explains that the bite of a poisonous snake won't hurt you if you have God in your heart, all this time holding in her hands an actual 3-foot long "Thamnophis sirtalis."

All these women are vital and very human. It is contagiously true of the bag woman in "French Fries" (Vanessa Crawford, directed by Joan Keyes Roberge), as she recounts the miracles that occur in McDonald's. It is courageously and humorously true of the woman in labor in "Dragons" (Mary Martello, directed by Pamela Vevers Sherin). And it is true with a different twist in the opening number, "Fifteen Minutes" (Sharon Kelly, directed by Bob Breslo), in which an actress in her dressing room, preparing for an entrance on stage, has the house lights turned up on the real audience so that she can get to know them as well as they her. She is "people" too, not merely "entertainment."

Even as some of the ideas blur, certain pictures stay vividly in my mind. For example — the grinning, patchwork scarecrow out of Oz in "Scraps" (Kathleen Noll, directed by Leslie Geraci); Tat, the show-stealing kitten in "Audition" (Suzanne Weinberg, directed by Maureen West); the artfully revealed tattooings in "Marks" (Petie Duncan, directed by Veronica Brady); the heart-warming jumble of garments worn by the bag lady; the pitiless white light on the hospital bed in "Dragons," accompanied by the thump-thump-thump of the infant's beating heart; the cool beauty of the baton twirler, like that of the iris called blue flag, erect at the edge of a pond; the sound of the glass marbles dropping, one by one, on the floor; the luminous clutter of that roomful of lamps; and the unforgettable tableau of all the performers massed around the marked lady at the end.

"Talking With" may be seen at Murray Theatre this Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m., and Sunday (July 17) at 2:30. For tickets call 452-8181.

produced by Shakespeare '70, with Deborah Ivins as director and Amy Rich as conductor of the three-piece orchestra. Gerry Guarnieri is producer and set designer.

The story of a young couple who fall in love in spite of their fathers' pretended disapproval, "The Fantasticks" has been called a musical parable about love.

Susan Kernler and Dann Correnti are the young lovers. Others in the cast are Joe Connolly as El Gallo; Charles W. Smith and Ed Wytovich as the two fathers; Tom Causey as the old actor, Tom Curbishley as the Indian, and Debbie Lawler as the mute.

Performances have been scheduled for July 22-24 and 28-30. Curtain time is 8:30; 7:30 on Sundays. The theatre is at 1150 Indiana Avenue, off Route One and the Brunswick Avenue circle. Reservations may be made by calling 392-1704.

READY TO LAUGH?

Try Summer Cinema. A comedy double-feature is now bringing a chuckle to July evenings in Kresge auditorium on Washington Road, where Summer Cinema is showing Alan Alda's "The Four Seasons" and the Peter Sellers' "Being There."

Both films will be shown starting this Wednesday and continuing through Sunday. Starting times may be obtained by calling the subscription office at McCarter Theatre, 452-4242.

When three upper-middle-class New York couples vacation together each season of the year, can friendship survive? There are an irrational lawyer and his magazine-editor wife (Alda and Carol Burnett); a paranoid dentist and his volatile Italian wife (Jack Weston, Rita Moreno) and a divorcing third couple (Len Cariou and Sandy Dennis) and the husband's new wife (Bess Armstrong). "The tensions," writes McCarter Theatre, "implicit in friendship."

"Being There" is Jerzy Kosinski's comic look at the influence of television on daily life. Peter Sellers, in his penultimate screen appearance, plays Chance, the gardener who has spent his entire life gardening and watching television, and is unexpectedly thrown into the real world of politics, business and women.

TO READ NEW PLAYS

At NewStage. "NewMondays," a series of staged readings of new plays, will begin next Monday with a reading of "A Try is a Failure," by Kenshaka Ali. It will be staged at 8 p.m. in (air-conditioned) Princeton Inn College Theatre, Alexander Street, and is open to the public without charge.

MUSIC In Princeton

BRING ON THE BRASS: The Eastern Brass Quintet, that is, who are scheduled to toot their horns in the outdoor chamber series in the Graduate College on Tuesday, July 19, at 8:30. If it should rain, everyone will move into Alexander Hall.

BRASS QUINTET DUE

In Outdoor Series. The Eastern Brass Quintet will be featured in the fourth of the Princeton University Outdoor Chamber Concert series on Tuesday at 8:30 in the main courtyard of the Princeton University Graduate College (or Alexander Hall in case of rain). The Quintet is an old favorite of Princeton summer concert audiences, having performed here several times in the past.

The Eastern Brass Quintet was formed in 1970, and has been active in virtually every aspect of chamber music performance. The group's members are David Bilger, trumpet; Richard Green, trumpet; Carlos Alicea, trombone; Robert Hoyle, French horn; Stephen Ross, tuba. They have appeared on both radio and television, and their concert tours have taken them to 46 states.

The performance on July 19 will include works from the Baroque to the contemporary: Paul Dukas' Fanfare to "La Peri," Johann Pezel's Two Sonatas from "Hora Decima," Victor Ewald's Quintet in B flat minor, Opus 5, Samuel Scheidt's Three Canzoni, Handel's Selections from "The Water Music" and Johann Sebastian Bach's Fugue in G minor, Air from the Third Suite. The concert will conclude with Bach's "Two Contrapuncti" from "The Art of the Fugue" which has become the Quintet's "signature piece."

These concerts are offered free, but contributions are appreciated. No chairs are provided; hence blankets are useful. If the weather is questionable, call 452-5977 on day of concert for information about location.

The last Outdoor Chamber Concert will be The Colorado String Quartet on August 24.

JAZZ IS NEXT

In Summer Sounds. The Laurie Altman Quintet will be performing in Princeton as part of the Summer Sounds concert series on Thursday at 7:30 in Community Park North.

The Quintet consists of Laurie Altman, pianist; Mack Goldsbury, tenor sax; George Naha, guitar; Tom Marvel, bass, and Victor Jones, drums. Their performing talents have been involved with such jazz luminaries as Red Garland, Stan Getz, Joanne Brackeen, Cedar Walton, Charlie Rouse, Billy Taylor, Richie Cole and Eddie Jefferson.

The Quintet's first album, "For Now at Least," was released last November on Progressive Records and has been doing well in the United States as well as in France and Germany.

Summer Sounds Concerts are held every Thursday night at 7:30 in Commmunity Park North at Route 206 and Mountain Avenue. Additional parking is available at the Community Park Pool parking lot. The rain date is the following night.

Future concerts include The Castle Browne Band (rock), July 21; Wood 'n' Strings (country rock and bluegrass), July 28; Regressive Aid (new music), August 4; and Crystal Silence (modern jazz), August 11.

CONDUCTOR NAMED

By Trenton Symphony. Mark Laycock of Philadelphia has been appointed conductor of the Greater Trenton Symphony Orchestra, replacing William Smith, associate conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra.

At age 25, Mr. Laycock is the youngest person to hold such a post with a metropolitan orchestra. He was the winner of the Leopold Stokowski Memorial Competition in association with the Philadelphia Orchestra in 1978 and was guest conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra in 1979.

Mr. Laycock has appeared as conductor of the Aspen Music Festival, Charlotte Symphony, Colorado Philharmonic, BBC Welsh Symphony Orchestra in Cardiff, Wales, and the Royal College of Music and Young Musicians Symphony orchestras of London. He has the honor of being the only conductor to have been invited for two consecutive years to participate in the Rupert Foundation's international conducting awards.

The Greater Trenton Symphony had five guest conductors this past season, all candidates for the post. Mr. Laycock received a standing ovation and five curtain calls. The Greater Trenton Symphony Orchestra will give five subscription concerts this season, the first October 23.

For tickets and further information, call 394-1338.

POPS CONCERTS SET

In New Brunswick. A varied program ranging from Offenbach to Sousa marches and Broadway tunes will be performed by the Garden State Symphonic Pops Orchestra on Thursday evening, July 14, at 8 in Buccleuch Park, New Brunswick.

The concert will be the next event in New Brunswick Tomorrow's summer music festival. It is part of the weeklong Middlesex County Tercentennial celebration in the city. Admission is free. People are advised to bring blankets or lawnchairs for an evening of music under the stars.

The Orchestra will be conducted by Elman Anderson, former musical director of the Radio City

MUSIC AT WESTMINSTER

Events Scheduled. Mid summer music events are offered daily by Westminster Choir College with free violin, voice and organ recitals and opportunities to participate in evenings of choral singing.

Concert violinist and composer Gerald Beal will give a recital this Wednesday, at 7 in the Bristol Chapel. He will be accompanied by pianist Linda Babits in a program of three sonatas by Claude Debussy, John Corigliano and Walter Piston.

Mark Brombaugh will give an organ recital this Wednesday evening at 8:30 in Trinity Church. Mr. Brombaugh is an instructor in organ and harpsichord at Westminster Choir College.

Soprano Judith Nicosia will sing on Thursday at 7 in Bristol Chapel. Ms. Nicosia is a member of the Westminster voice faculty and sings professionally, performing regularly in the major concert halls of New York City and across the country. She has won many national and international awards, including the Montreal International Voice Competition, the Paris International Voice Competition and the National Opera Institute Career Award.

Ms. Nicosia will perform a program of all German music with songs by Franz Schubert, Robert Fuchs, Richard Trunk, and a cycle of songs satirizing music publishers by Richard Strauss. The accompanist will be Margaret Singer, former coach with the New York City Opera, San Francisco Opera and the Opera Company of Philadelphia.

Judith Nicosia

Organist Joan Lippincott will give her final summer recital on Sunday at 8:30 in Trinity Church. Ms. Lippincott heads the Westminster Organ Department and concertizes regularly.

An organ recital by Westminster faculty member Eugene Roan is scheduled for Monday at 6:30 in Bristol Chapel preceding the Monday night "Hymn Sing," which Alice Parker will conduct beginning at 8:30. Everyone is invited to join the final Hymn Sing of the season.

Haydn's "Lord Nelson Mass" will be sung at the Tuesday "Summer Sing" with Joseph Flummerfelt conducting. Dr. Flummerfelt, artistic director and principal conductor at Westminster Choir College, recently returned from the "Festival of Two Worlds" in Spoleto, Italy, where he conducted the Westminster Choir in a performance of this Mass. As conductor of the New York Choral Society, chorus master of the New York Philharmonic and conductor of the Westminster Symphonic Choir, Dr. Flummerfelt trains choirs for performances with the world's leading symphony orchestras and conductors.

For more information contact the Westminster Summer Session Office at 924-7416.

GUITARIST-SINGER DUE

For Folk Music Society. The Princeton Folk Music Society will feature Gabriel Yacoub in concert this Wednesday at 8 pm at the home of Art and Arlene Miller, 2 University Way, Princeton Junction.

Gabriel Yacoub (guitar & vocals) has been in the forefront of the European renaissance in Celtic music since the early '70s. In a style that gracefully blends the 15th century with our own, Mr. Yacoub sings of weddings, of nightingales, and of girls and their lovers. His songs are taken mostly from the French folk tradition, and their strophic melody and simple modal harmonies evoke a soothing monotony.

His singing brays in a similarly pleasant, nasal way — mixing elements of folk techniques with an ornamentation and swooping portamento reminiscent of North Africa.

Admission is $5 for adults, $3.50 for students, and $3 for Society members. There are no advance sales. Memberships are available at the door. For further information call 924-9143.

The play takes place in a Harlem methadone clinic. It depicts the struggle of two heroin addicts to free themselves, not only from heroin, but from their own fear and loneliness.

After the performance, two counselors at the Mercer County Drug Abuse Clinic, Trenton, Mr. Ali and Noreen Tomassi, who is the director for the series, will join with the audience in a discussion of the play.

Future readings will include a new translation of "Oedipus at Colonus," done by Princeton resident Robert Fagles; "Responses," by David Cole and short pieces by Princeton playwright Larry Harris.

'ZELDA,' NO MORE

Premiere in New Hope. "I Don't Want to be Zelda Anymore," a new play by Marty Martin, author of "Gertrude Stein, Gertrude Stein, Gertrude Stein," has opened at the Phillips Mill Playhouse on Route 32 North in New Hope.

Based on the life of Zelda Fitzgerald, the wife of F. Scott Fitzgerald, the play was written for Alabama actress Margie Bolding, who was born in Birmingham, not far from where Zelda grew up. "Zelda" portrays the novelist's wife's search for her own identity and also chronicles life during the age of the flapper.

Produced by George Culver and directed by Jason Buzas, both of New York, the play will run through August 8, before going on a national tour.

Performances are Thursday through Monday of each week, at 8:30 each evening except Sunday, when the play begins at 6 p.m.

Tickets are priced from $8 to $12 with a discount for senior citizens. Reservations can be made by calling the box office at 215-862-3381.

CHINESE DANCE TROUPE

At Trenton State Saturday. In a kaleidoscope of dazzling costumes and authentic dances, the "Classical Chinese Dance Troupe of Taiwan" will appear Saturday evening, July 23, at Trenton State College in Ewing Township.

The 45-member, all-female company from the National Academy of Arts in Taiwan has appeared before audiences all over the world. Its program, which features a number of intricate dances from a wide range of periods in the long history of Chinese civilization, is part of a tour of North and South America.

Tickets for the performance, which will be held in TSC'd Kendall Hall theatre at 7:30 p.m., are $5 for adults and $3 for children and students. For more information, call 771-2106 or contact Dr. Richard Warner, president of People to People of Greater Trenton, at 771-2318. Tickets will also be available at the door.

SHEPHERD ON STAGE

At Clinton. Jean Shepherd, performer, humorist and author, will appear on the stage at Clinton Historical Museum Village this Saturday at 8 p.m. Rain date is Sunday.

Shepherd, who owns a retreat in Warren County, describes himself as a student of New Jersey. He feels that being a weekend visitor gives him more perspective than if he dwelt here. The master story-teller will reminisce about growing up in Indiana and talk about life in New Jersey.

Tickets will be available at the gate Saturday after 6 p.m. or in advance at the Museum office. Tickets are priced at $5 for adults, $4 for seniors, and $2 for children under 12.

Those attending are asked to bring lawn chairs. Refreshments will be available and limited parking is available on the Museum grounds.

FROM TOMATO PATCH

Student Performances. Thirty-five classes of students in 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th grades will perform this Friday and Saturday in Kelsey Theatre on the West Windsor campus of Mercer County Community College, showing what they have learned and created in MCCC's Tomato Patch summer workshops. Performances will be at 7:30 p.m. Friday and noon Saturday.

In conjunction with the performances will be exhibits of student work.

On the weekend of Friday and Saturday, August 5 and 6, younger Tomato Patchers in the 35 classes of seventh and eighth graders will present the results of their work. These performances will also be at 7:30 Friday and noon Saturday.

For these "Weekend Festivals of the Arts" ticket prices are $2 for adults and $1 for children 12 and under, and senior citizens.

JAZZ IMPACT

At Shakespeare Festival. The jazz ensemble, Jazz Impact, will play the New Jersey Shakespeare Festival next Monday at 8, opening the Festival's annual series of Monday Night Specials. The repertory theatre is in Madison on the Drew University campus.

The single performance will feature trumpeter Harold Lieberman, who has appeared at the Festival for the past 11 seasons. He will be joined by Derek Smith, piano; Ronnie Bedford, drums; Linc Milliman, brass; Dick Meldonian, sax, and George Masso, trombone.

Tickets are $11 to $13.75 and may be reserved by calling 201-377-4487.

EXHIBIT PURCHASED

Available for Loan. An exhibition of 40 photographs of New Jersey houses, recently shown at the New Jersey State Museum, will be available for loan to New Jersey non-profit institutions beginning next fall. This addition to the museum's traveling exhibition service was made possible by the Commodities Corporation of Princeton, which purchased the portfolio of photographs featured in the exhibition for the museum's collection. The museum has announced plans to tour the collection for at least one year.

The exhibition is based on the research of Princeton residents Helen Schwartz and Margaret Morgan Fisher, who collaborated on the book "The New Jersey House," published by Rutgers University Press. One-third of the book's 120 photographs are included in the exhibition as a representation of the diversity and high quality of New Jersey's domestic architecture. Styles highlighted in the exhibition range from Quaker brickwork to Victorian gingerbread and from Swedish log cabins to modern post-Cubist houses.

The traveling exhibition joins over two dozen others available through the New Jersey State Museum. A brochure describing the exhibitions and terms of loan are available from the Museum's Education Bureau by phoning 609-292-7780. Information on the availability of "The New Jersey House" may be obtained after September 1.

Commodities Corporation, which was founded in 1970, trades and invests its own capital in commodities and securities and, through its subsidiaries, manages outside funds in commodities. The markets in which it actively participates include agricultural commodities, financial instruments, and natural resources.

The New Jersey State Museum, a division of the Department of State, is located at 205 West State Street in Trenton. It is open from 9 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and from 1 to 5 on Sundays. Admission is free.

LEONARDO

At University Museum. Opening on September 18 and continuing through November 6, the Princeton University Art Museum will exhibit "Leonardo's Return to Vinci," assembled around 1900 by a Parisian collector — still owned by her descendants — and first shown publicly in Vinci, Italy, in 1980.

The collection has been in a number of American museums in a tour organized by the Italian Cultural Institute in San Francisco and the museum of the University of California in Berkeley.

The exhibition consists of four tempera on linen drapery studies by Leonardo; an oil painting, "Salvator Mundi" attributed to him and two 17th-century manuscripts: Leonardo's "Tratatto della pittura" ("Treatise on Painting") with illustrations after drawings by Nicolas Poussin, and "De Figuris Humanis" ("Theory of the Human Figure") with illustrations after drawings by Rubens. Explanatory material will accompany the exhibit.

The four drapery studies are rare works thought to date from the 1480s when Leonardo was still working in the studio of his master, Verrocchio. The oil painting of the Savior, based on a lost composition painted at the end of Leonardo's life for Francis I, King of France, has usually been ascribed to a follower of Leonardo; however, two art scholars have attributed the painting to Leonardo himself.

The manuscripts illustrate Leonardo's importance for art theorists, and reflect his influence on the great artists of the 17th century.

FOWLER WORKS ON VIEW

At Left. Fourteen pieces by Eric N. Fowler, former New Jersey artist, are now on view at the Left Gallery, 306 Alexander. The exhibit will be hanging through the summer.

An illustrator now living in New York, he has received awards from the Graphics annual, the Society of Publication Designers, the Society of Illustrators and the Art Direction Show. His work has appeared in Sports Illustrated, Redbook, Penthouse and in the publications of IBM, ATT, McGraw-Hill and RCA Records.

POSTCARDS!

At Art People Place. Street life and architecture, Americana and theme collections are on view through postcards at The Art People Place, Witherspoon Street, under the sponsorship of the Arts Council of Princeton. It will remain on view through September 15.

One of the theme collections depicts waitresses through history, as seen by famous artists. There are also cards by local artists.

Gallery Number 1, where the collection has been arranged, is open from 12:30 to 5, Tuesdays through Fridays. Most of the post cards are for sale, and the show itself is free and open to the public.

Ed Lee
Olympic Hopeful

LEE LOOKS FOR GOLD

In Olympic Hockey. Princeton University junior Ed Lee will forego his summer vacation plans, his senior year of college, and perhaps the remainder of his Princeton ice hockey career in order to compete for a position on the 1984 United States Olympic ice hockey team.

Lee, a 6-foot-2, 187-pound wing who has been the leading scorer for the Tigers the past two seasons, has won a spot on the 27-man squad that will play 65 games beginning in August in preparation for the Olympic competition in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, next February.

The squad will be cut from 27 to 20 just prior to the Olympics. Among those cut will be one goaltender, one center, three defensemen, and two wings.

Although the sociology major from Bristol, Rhode Island, has said he will return to Princeton to complete the requirements for a degree, he also says he will pursue his hockey career as far as it takes him.

He already has begun weightlifting, running, and skating at a rink in Smithfield, Rhode Island. The pre-Olympic team begins practice August 7 and will head for Alaska August 22 for its first game, against a Russian club. The team's training schedule includes a half dozen games against the Russian national team and 12 games against the Canada's national squad, in addition to exhibitions against the New York Rangers, Pittsburgh Penguins, and Washington Capitols (preceding a lunch with President Reagan).

After Olympics, NHL? If Lee makes the Olympic team, he will become the first Princeton skater ever to represent the United States and the first athlete from Old Nassau since 1976, when Carol Brown won a bronze medal in rowing. Before that a half dozen Princetonians competed in the 1968 Olympics but only one captured a medal — swimmer Ross Wales won a bronze in the butterfly.

Lee's Olympic competition would not consume his final year of college eligibility — he would be able to return to compete for Jim Higgins' team in the '84-'85 season. But another possible activity would make him permanently ineligible.

Drafted by the Quebec Nordiques of the National Hockey League, Lee has told friends that he will consider a professional career after the Olympics "if the money is right." The last Tiger to skate professionally was Syl Apps Jr. in the late 1960s and early '70s and only a handful of Americans from the gold medal winning 1980 Olympic team ever made the NHL. At this point, though, those facts are not enough to put the slightest shadow on the bright hopes of Lee, obviously a young man looking for gold.

COMEBACK TOO LATE?

For Post 76 Team. The Princeton Post 76 entry in the Mercer County American Legion League is cutting it pretty fine.

Although the 76ers have won their last two, suggesting a second-half comeback that manager Larry Bender predicted is at hand, the team also dropped a 7-3 decision to Mitchell-Davis earlier in the week, its twelfth against five victories. Twelve is the most setbacks that a team can absorb and still qualify for the league playoffs. If Bender's crystal ball is accurate, Princeton is faced with the task of winning all ten of its remaining games.

Post 76 will entertain winless Hightstown Thursday at Princeton University's Clarke Field at 5:45. It will then face formidable Ewing, tied with Broad Street Park for second place behind league-leading Hamilton, on Friday and travel to Lawrence Post 414 for a night game Saturday starting at 7:30 at Eggerts Crossing Field. Tuesday at 5:45, it will host Broad Street Park.

How well Post 76 performs in the four games will decide its playoff hopes.

All-Stars Beaten. Three members of the Princeton team were named to the Mercer County American Legion All Star team which dropped a 6-3 decision Sunday to the Bucks County American Legion All Stars at Bob DeMeo Field in Hamilton.

Princeton's Dan Arendas, last year's Most Valuable Player in the Legion League, was named to the outfield along with Paul Pintella and Duane Nelson, both from Mitchell-Davis. Chris Huntinghake was named one of three reserve outfielders on the 25-member All-Star Squad and Stu Hirstein of Post 76 was named a designated hitter along with Broad Street Park's Mike Zito.

After Bucks took a 2-0 in the first off Mercer starter and losing pitcher Rich Stout of Hamilton, Mercer got one run back in the second when first baseman Scott Oshel of Here's an amazing fact ... Although most baseball managers don't have much job security, there was once a man who managed the SAME big league team for 50 CONSECUTIVE YEARS! ... That man was Connie Mack who managed the A's every year from 1901 through 1950 — and thereby set a record that will probably never be broken.

But one of the drivers scheduled to race that day failed to show up ... The owners of the car asked Powell to come out of the stands and drive for them ... Powell, who has raced before, got into the car and won the race — and the $1,500 first prize!

Here's one hard to believe, but it's true ... Lawrence singled home Duane Nelson who had walked and stolen second.

Bucks took a commanding 6-1 lead with three runs in the fifth, the highlight a two-run homer by Tom Grochowski who was the game's offensive star with a homer, two singles and three runs batted in. His homer came off reliefer Joe Buono of Lawrence.

Mercer scored its last two runs in the same inning. Third baseman Bob Stemmer of Hamilton, the league's leading batter, walked and Pintella beat out an infield hit to deep third. After catcher Dave Wandling popped to second for the second out, Mike Zito lined the ball down the right field line for a triple, scoring two.

Neither team scored in the final four innings. Arendas and Hunninghake both singled to account for two of the seven Mercer hits. Chris Marchok, one of four Bucks hurlers, was the winning pitcher.

In all, Mercer stranded 10 runners. After the game, manager Chuck Giambelluca of Broad Street Park commented that he was impressed with the Bucks pitching staff that was able to pitch its way out of jams.

Bastedo Blow Decides. Saturday's marathon game with Trenton Post 93 was decided in the 13th inning when Bill Bastedo nailed a two-out homer off losing pitcher Dave Simla, scoring Bill Fuess and Dino D'Angelo, both of whom had walked, ahead of him. D'Angelo got the win.

Each team had 15 hits in the free-swinging contest. Hunninghake paced Post 76 at the plate with a triple and three singles, while teammate Brian Lenox had a double and a single. Dan Arendas, younger brother Dave Arendas, Mike Colston, Scott Ellis, John Villani, Feuss, D'Angelo and Bastedo also rapped singles for Princeton.

Trenton (9-8) had scored three runs in the eighth and one in the ninth to send the contest into extra innings. The losers were led by Allan Soltesz who had four hits.

The previous day, Princeton plated five runs in the fifth inning en route to an 11-10 victory over Hopewell, its closest rival in the standings with a 6-11 record.

Arendas clubbed Hopewell into submission with three singles and a two-run triple that highlighted Princeton's five-run rally. Winning pitcher Mike Colston then followed with an RBI single and what proved to be the winning run. The first run in the uprising scored on a wild pitch and the second on an error by losing pitcher Chris Hastings.

Lenox, Colston, Dave Arendas, D'Angelo and Jeff Enslin each singled during Princeton's 10-hit attack. There were 10 errors in the game, six by Post 76.

Princeton began the week losing to Mitchell-Davis which broke a six-game losing streak with its 7-3 win.

The game was tied at 3 after six innings when former Hun School standout Martin Summers ended it with a grand slam in the seventh. Bastedo (1-4) was charged with the loss.

Each team was limited to five hits. Hunninghake continued his hot hitting for Princeton with a double and single. Arendas also doubled for the losers while Mike Petrone and Mickey Carnevale singled. Hunninghake, Colston and Carnevale each drove in a run for the losers.

RED, ORANGE WIN

In Summer Lacrosse. Red and Orange, two of the top performing teams in the Princeton Summer Lacrosse League, both won games last week—each by one goal.

Red managed to outlast Green, 8-7, getting two goals each from Alex Versfeld and Jim DeLang and one each from Peter Versfeld, Ward Taggart, Mark Sweetland and Ray Manyoky. Green responded with a pair of goals each from Jerry Stein and Chris Peters. Todd Breithaupt, Ebe Metcalf and Tim Sheehan added single tallies.

Orange used a balanced attack to nip Gold, 5-4, as Andy Jensen, Tom VonOehsen, Larry Shannon, Bill Noonan and Bob Campbell scored for the victors. Phil Clippinger's three goals paced Gold. Eric Bylin scored Gold's fourth goal.

In a high-scoring contest, Navy defeated White, 12-9. Five players accounted for all but one Navy goal, as Bill Whittaker found the net three times and Sam Reeves, Charles Reeves, Bryce Thompson and Steve Schulter twice each. Pete Schulter contributed one goal. For White, John Hutter was high scorer with three goals, followed by Bob Olsen and Bryce Chase Jr., two each, and Pete Johnson and Bryce Chase, one apiece.

All Star Slate. The following week, the Princeton All-Star team comprised of the league's older, more-experienced players that will be selected by coach Hawley Watterman and his assistant, Princeton High coach Peter Larsen, will participate in a four-game season.

The opening game on Sunday, July 17, will find the Princeton All-Stars entertaining Flemington at the Princeton High School field at 1. In succeeding weeks, Princeton will oppose the Atlantic City Lax Club at Stockton State College, join seven other teams in the Garden State Games Lax Festival at Kean College and play Flemington again at Hunterdon Central High School.

TWO TIED FOR LEAD

In Men's Softball League. With three weeks of regulation time left in the Princeton Men's Softball League, the jam up for first place has eased—but only slightly.

Princeton Nautilus and Mike's Tavern share the lead with 14-2 records, while Conte's Bar, which lost last week to Nautilus, is a game behind at 13-3. Still in contention for a playoff spot are Princeton Italian American Sportsmen Club with an 11-5 mark and Hinkson's and C.Sq.C. both even at 10-6.

are Downtown A.C. (7-9), P.M.C. and Buffalo Wings, both 4-12, Army-Navy (3-13), Stefanelli's (2-13-1) and Marita's (0-15-1).

The league is now playing games on Tuesday and Thursday evenings prior to the playoffs which start August 2. In key upcoming games, Nautilus will oppose Conte's on Thursday, and Mike's will take on Conte's on Tuesday.

Nautilus won its ninth consecutive game last week, as it swept a doubleheader Sunday, routing Conte's 20-12, and edging Hinkson's 8-7.

In the opener against Conte's, Nautilus came out swinging, collecting 26 hits to knock Conte's out of a tie for first place. Nautilus scored five runs in the first, three in the second, three in the fourth and put the game out of reach with a seven-run burst in the fifth inning.

Leading hitters for Nautilus were Mike Shillaber and Kevin Phox. Shillaber was 3-for-3, including a home run and six runs batted in. Phox also had a perfect day at the plate, going 4-for-4 (four singles) and driving in a pair of runs.

Contributing three hits each to the victors' attack were Dave Shillaber, Scott Porreca, Pat Kahny and Judd Petrone. Jeff Grover and Ken Bruvik combined for four more. Like Shillaber, Petrone and Bruvik counted a home run among their hits. Grover was the winning pitcher.

Pacing the losers at the plate were Bill McQuade, 4-for-4, and John Pesce, 3-for-3. George McVaugh, Jack Roberts, Al Kandell, Erik Eikren, Ray Clark, Bob Pazdan and Anthony Collangelo each had two hits. Pazdan homered while Roberts and Collangelo each had 3 RBIs.

Winning RBI. In the second game, Dave Shillaber drove in the winning run in the bottom of the seventh. With two out, he drove in Porreca who had singled. Shillaber had two hits and three RBIs in the game.

Collecting two hits each in the win were Jack Petrone, Judd Petrone, James Petrone and Phox. James Petrone contributed a homer to the Nautilus attack to help Grover raise his mound record to 4-0.

Leading hitters for Hinkson's with two each were Mike Boonin, Mark Bergeron, Mark Taylor and Steve Pappatera. Taylor swung the big bat with a double and three RBIs. Scott Hartshorn was tagged with the loss.

In Women's Softball. The Princeton Women's Adult Slow Pitch Softball League concluded its seventh week of action last week with Mike's Tavern clinching its third straight league title by downing Conte's Bar, 12-1. Andy's Tavern defeated Army-Navy Store, 19-2, under the 15-run rule.

Mike's scored four runs in the first inning, four in the fifth, and three in the sixth, led by the hitting of Michelle Morgan, Debbie Breithaupt, Dee Pearce, Clare Baxter (2 hits, triple, 4 RBIs), Debbie Ficarro, and winning pitcher Lorraine Duthie. For Conte's, Jackie Rock and Peggy Wood each had two hits. Barbie Falcone and Heather Ward were each 1-for-2.

Bridges

Mr. Harney, at that time, estimated $850,000 to replace the bridge and said the county simply didn't have the money.

Last month, Mercer County executive Bill Mathesius asked Federal and state for money to help the county strengthen its bridge system.

He testified in the State Assembly in support of a $150 million bond issue to be used for repair of New Jersey's bridges. Of that amount, 25 percent would go to the counties.

He has also been in touch with Congressman Chris Smith, and has been told his office would support Mercer County in obtaining money through specific appropriations, or a block grant.

"Many of the 670 bridges and culverts in Mercer are old and in poor repair," the county executive said. "We are determined to avoid a disaster like the recent collapse of the bridge in Connecticut.

"If it comes to making a choice between keeping a bridge open or closing it to safeguard the lives of our citizens, you can be sure the bridges will be closed or the load capacity down-graded."

Astronomer James Gunn Receives Award from MacArthur Foundation

"It came right out of the blue," the astronomer said.

Dr. James Gunn, who holds the Eugene Higgins astronomy chair at Princeton University, answered the telephone in his lab last Friday afternoon.

"This is the MacArthur Foundation," the telephone voice said, "I have some good news for you ... "

The good news was a five-year MacArthur grant. Dr. Gunn declines to say how much his annual amount will be, but previous similar awards have been around $40,000 each year.

"I had absolutely no idea it was coming."

The John and Catherine MacArthur Foundation does not accept applications for its grants. Recipients are said to be chosen for creativity as well as accomplishments, and award winners have included artists, social workers and writers, as well as scientists and scholars.

A Texan with a degree from Rice in 1961, Dr. Gunn received his doctorate from the California Institute of Technology in 1965. He then joined the Cal Tech faculty, remaining there until coming to Princeton. He is about to start his fourth year at the University.

Colleagues say he is an unusual combination of theorist, observer and engineer. His fields are cosmology, the expanding universe, quasars, star clusters in the earth's galaxy.

Mercury Stuck at 90°

Eight, at 90.

Not a record, but who wants that kind of record?

For eight straight days, the mercury has touched 90 degrees or above, starting with a good strong 94 on Tuesday, July 12. The peak was Friday, with 98 degrees. That night, there was a brief thunderstorm.

Saturday and Monday were close, with highs of 97, and Saturday was particularly uncomfortable because of high humidity. Sunday was relatively pleasant, even at 94, because the humidity dropped.

The low, in those eight days, was last Wednesday, July 13, with 92. The next day, it went back up to 95.

Dry, too. In 18 July days, Princeton has had only a quarter-inch of rain, not counting the quick shower Tuesday afternoon.

Borough Sewer Ban Rescinded by State

The sewer ban imposed on Princeton in May by the state, has been lifted.

The Sewer Operating Committee secretary, George Olexa, received on Monday a letter from the Department of Environmental Protection announcing that the May 24 restrictions are "rescinded."

Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley said this means the Borough will make sewer allocations for Collins Development.

The DEP letter, from Arnold Schiffman, the administrator for water quality management, said the lifting of the ban was based on the SOC's program for rehabilitating Princeton's sewers. Mr. Schiffman has been examining detailed reports of the program, prepared by SOC officials, since June 30.

He warned that while work was going on there might still be sewer overflow, especially in abnormally wet weather.

The public should be warned of such a possibility, he told the SOC, but it

A VIEW OF THE BRIDGE: Looking south, from Hulfish toward Nassau, this drawing shows the proposed bridge over Palmer Square East. The bridge connects the old addition to the Nassau Inn (right) with the new addition planned for the strip of land on the east side of the street. The building on the southeast corner of Hulfish and Palmer Square East, will remain and be incorporated into the new addition.

Collins to Pay Borough $120,000 For Palmer Square Air Rights

Collins Development Corporation will pay the Borough $120,000 over a six-year period for the right to use the air over Palmer Square East.

Collins plans to use the space for a bridge connecting the present Nassau Inn and an addition to be built on the other side of the street. The Borough will retain title, and is only granting an easement. If Collins does not use the space for the purposes approved by the Planning Board, or abandons it, the Borough can reclaim.

The enabling ordinance has been scheduled for introduction this Wednesday at 5 in Borough Hall. Public hearing will be Thursday, August 4 at 8 p.m. during Council's August work session.

After passage on August 4, Council will sign an agreement with Collins incorporating the provisions of the ordinance.

There is an understanding among Council members, Mayor Robert W. Cawley and Collins that the money will be used in some way in the John-Witherspoon area, which is Palmer Square's immediate neighbor to the north and the home of most of the Borough's black residents.

Although there are no specific plans so far for the neighborhood, Mayor Cawley said, Council will probably adopt some form of resolution stating its intent toward John-Witherspoon.

Under the agreement negotiated between Collins and the Borough, Collins will pay the $120,000 on a deferred-payment basis. There will be no payment the first year, which will start when the agreement is signed August 4.

At the start of the second year, in August of 1984, Collins will pay $5,000. Another $5,000 payment will be made at the start of the third year.

At the beginning of the fourth and fifth years, Collins will pay $10,000 and at the sixth and final year, $90,000.

Interest, payable quarterly, will be 10 percent on the unpaid balance.

Last week, the Borough's appraiser, Joseph Martin, said a fair market value would be $63,000. He estimated the total indicated value at $90,000 — $30,000 less than the final, agreed-on figure.
